

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	5
FOREWORD TO THE SECOND EDITION	6
1. GETTING STARTED	8
What is this about—and who is it for?	8
Does the protagonist have to change?	10
What is the process-oriented approach to the protagonist transformation?	13
Process-oriented tools through film examples	18
Exercises	23
2. THE ON-SCREEN LIFE OF THE PROTAGONIST AS A PROCESS	25
What is Process? Arnold Mindell and Process-Oriented Psychology	25
The dreambody: a harbinger of “trouble”	27
The protagonist in the fire of two opposing forces	34
The authentic protagonist	35
Invisible story	38
3. HOW TO SEE THE INVISIBLE STORY	40
External or internal transformation?	41
On the edge of psychosis—following the dreambody	48
Process polarization—the two poles of the engine of change	55
Exercises	69
4. WHO THE PROTAGONIST IS—AND WHO THEY ARE NOT	71
When is a conflict developmental?	71
Who is the protagonist?	75
Who is the protagonist not?	78
Inciting incident—the first “collision” with the dreambody	86
Tool: “How do you experience this?”	97
What does the character know and what is completely unaware of?	106
Tool: the process table	122
When the protagonist can reach their goal—the New Self	128
Exercises	129

5. DREAM FIGURES, EDGE FIGURES AND CRITICS	131
The narrative as a battlefield of psychic sub-personalities	131
Who supports and who hinders the protagonist transformation?	131
The dream figure—the process-oriented “antagonist”	131
Edge figures—the fuel for midpoint	131
Critics—allies and enemies	131
The triumph of failure	131
Exercises	131
6. SIGNALS OF THE DREAMBODY	131
Act I—the dreambody knocks at the door	131
First turning point—the first confrontation	131
Emotions—signals of the dreaming process	131
Exercises	131
7. INVISIBLE EDGES—VISIBLE OBSTACLES	131
The edge as the engine of the protagonist’s transformation	131
Breaking through the edge—the second turning point and climax	131
When the hero and the edge are both “strong” and “hot”	131
Dramatic structure, or the stages of breaking through edges	131
The dance on the edge	131
Tool: “If not the protagonist, then who could do it?”	131
Exercises	131
8. THE MULTICHANNEL PROTAGONIST	132
The dreambody—a sensual experience	132
Images—the visual channel (sight)	132
Sounds—the auditory channel (hearing)	132
Choreography, gestures, staging—the movement channel	132
The protagonist’s body—the proprioception channel	132
Close relationships—the relational channel	132
Broader connections—the world channel	132

Escalation of dreaming—channel transitions	132
Exercises	132
9. AMPLIFICATION—PROCESS-ORIENTED TENSION BUILDING	132
Amplification as a tool	132
Amplification as a guide	132
10. THE MAP AND THE PATH OF THE CHARACTER’S PROCESS	132
The Process map—where to begin?	132
Process map of narrative elements—The Silence of the Lambs	132
Key stages of the path on the Process map	132
Primary colors of the “process-oriented palette”	132
Exercises	132
11. EXPERIENCING THE PROCESS—EXAMPLES OF INVISIBLE STORIES	133
The delayed teenage rebellion—The Truman Show	133
Marriage is a thriller—Rear Window	133
Reheating desire—Eyes Wide Shut	133
How do you experience this, Evelyn?—Everything Everywhere All at Once	133
If not Jack, then who could do it?—Fight Club	133
The melodrama of dreambodies—Matthias & Maxime	133
12. “A PATH MADE BY WALKING”	133
Edges in folk tales and myths	133
A few subjective remarks	133
Narrating narratives	133
FILM SUMMARIES	133
BIBLIOGRAPHY	133
FILMOGRAPHY	133
LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS	133